NATURAL SCIENCE

THE UNIVERSE

PREMISE

Ordinary matter—the stuff that makes stars, planets, people and everything we directly observe—accounts for less than 5% of the universe's mass-energy budget. Dark matter and dark energy dominate the current cosmological model, although their underlying nature remains unknown.

QUESTION

What does it say about science that our best model of the universe depends on things we still do not understand?